

AGED CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

JOHN WEIGAND WAS IN HIS 86TH YEAR.

A Native of County Meets Death by Being Run Over by W. M. R. R. Train.

John Weigand died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Anna Shoop, on Seminary Ridge, on Sunday afternoon aged about 85 years, 8 months and 25 days. Though not in the best of health for some time he was not confined to his bed. He contracted a slight cold last week which annoyed him considerably and it is thought hastened his death. Mr. Weigand was a native of Germany. He was born in Hessedarmstadt and came to this country shortly after the battle. Mr. Weigand was married in Germany and his wife accompanied him here. She died in 1902. Surviving him are the following children: John Weigand of McKeesport, Louis Weigand, Mrs. Anna Shoop, Mrs. Elizabeth Warren, and Mrs. Catharine Reichle, all of Gettysburg. Six grandchildren also survive. The funeral was held Wednesday morning, services by Rev. J. B. Baker, interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Daniel E. Barnitz of Hanover, on Tuesday afternoon met death under a Western Maryland freight train. Mr. Barnitz had been in ill health for the past two years and just last week returned to the home of his nephews and niece, from the Sanatorium at Mt. Hope, near Baltimore. At an early hour on Tuesday he quickly left the house and wandered on the track of the Western Maryland Railway, near the Barnitz home, just previous to the arrival of the night freight which reaches there at 1:53 A. M. E. H. Houck, conductor of the train, and his brakeman, W. H. Yohe, were standing on the rear platform of the caboose, when they felt that the car had gone over something, and supposing it to be a broken rail stopped the train. Going back they found the body of Mr. Barnitz and immediately telephoned for Dr. J. H. Bittinger, who upon his arrival found that life was extinct. The body was lying on the south rail, face upward and the wheels had passed over the right arm, crushing it from the elbow down and also cutting the abdomen, across which the arm was lying. The body showed no signs of bruises or other cuts and the man's coat was lying on the grass about 15 feet distant. How Mr. Barnitz met death will remain a mystery, but it is evident that only the wheels of the caboose ran over the body. He was a son of the late Daniel H. Barnitz and was born and raised on the old "Barnitz homestead," along the Carlisle pike, three miles from Hanover in this county. He was aged 66 years. Mr. Barnitz was a cattle dealer for a number of years, but retired from active business about four years ago. Surviving is an only sister, Mrs. James O. Swartz of New Oxford.

He was born near the place at which he died and lived there all his life, being a highly respected citizen, his entire life being marked by rectitude and kindness. He followed coopering until 1885 and also farming. His wife, Anna Maria Greyson of Liberty township, died 23 years ago. He is survived by one son, Charles C. ## ADDRESS OF COL. A. A. DALE

AT THE NATIONAL CEMETERY ON MEMORIAL DAY.

A Brilliant Oration for These Anniversary Days of the Great Battle.

Dr. T. C. Billheimer, master of ceremonies on Memorial Day, introduced Col. A. A. Dale of Bellefonte, as a graduate of dear old Gettysburg College, who had made good in the olden days and had been making good ever since.

Col. Dale at the request of this paper has furnished us with his address, which has been written out since. The address on Memorial Day was extemporaneous but Col. Dale has reproduced both the thought and language as it was delivered, and we take great pleasure in giving our readers his brilliant address on this 52nd anniversary of the raid preceding the great battle of Gettysburg.

Col. A. A. Dale's Address.

Mr. Chairman: Members of the Grand Army: Friends and Fellow-Citizens:—

That was quite a flattering introduction. I do not know what the reputation of your chairman is for truth and veracity in this neighborhood, but I do know that in this particular instance, he has been guilty of gross exaggeration. I fear he has unduly excited your expectations and placed me at a disadvantage. The question now is, whether I can make the cargo correspond with the manifest, or whether the show will be equal to the advertisement of the advance agent. I can only say as did Colonel Miller at the battle of Lundy's Lane. When asked by General Brown whether he could capture one of the enemies' batteries that was doing considerable damage to the American troops, the Colonel's reply was, "I will try, Sir."

It is certainly a pleasure to be accorded the privilege of meeting with you this afternoon and talking to you on an occasion like this. At the same time, it is gratifying to see such a large and representative audience present. It is an evidence that your interest in the Memorial Day exercises is not waning.

You have assembled again to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of our nation's loved and honored dead. The green hillsides, the fertile valleys, the rugged mountain slopes, your shapely lawns, beautified by industry and art, have yielded their choicest flowers and in this the brightest and happiest season of the year, when nature is robing itself in all its beauty and loveliness, with devoted hearts and willing hands, you have come to scatter your floral offerings over the silent dust that was once animated with the same noble and patriotic purposes that inspire your hearts to-day. And now, that duty done, we have gathered around this memorable spot where the immortal Lincoln delivered his incomparable address, to give expression in song and speech to the sentiments and feelings which your floral tributes have already so silently, yet so eloquently expressed.

The feelings that have prompted us to suspend our usual employments and gather in these consecrated grounds to mingle with each other in the impressive services of this day, a day second only in patriotic memories to the anniversary of our national independence, are not mere matters of passing sentiment, but they have their mainspring in a deep and abiding sense of gratitude to our fellow-countrymen who made such unselfish sacrifices, that you, and I, and those who come after us, might continue to enjoy the blessings of liberty: that this benign government of ours, the government we all love so well, should have a new lease of life; that our country in all its fair proportions, should again be united, prosperous and happy, and that the stars and stripes, that glorious emblem of freedom, should again wave in splendor over a peaceful, harmonious and Union loving people.

Here in this sacred place, dedicated to the sepulture of our nation's heroes, and surrounded by the hallowed influences of our patriot dead, we rise above the petty jealousies and bitter contentions of party strife and with unanimous voice, we laud the praises of our beloved country and extol the merits of its brave defenders.

Situated as we are this afternoon, we may also receive increased inspiration and encouragement from the thought, that throughout this broad land thousands, yes millions, of affectionate hearts are beating in unison with ours and millions of tender hands are engaged in the same loving service. We are not alone. The great heart of the nation is overflowing with gratitude to those who bared their bosoms in its defense, while that mysterious chord of sympathy, that makes us all kin, is vibrating to the angelic touch of peace and good will.

If we are loyal to our country, if we appreciate the services of those whose virtues we here commemorate, we cannot fail to recognize the propriety of setting aside at least one day in the year in which we may in an especial manner show our respect for the dead, give encouragement to the living and renew our devotion to the cause of human freedom, for

THE CHARACTER OF FOLK

William Allen White Gives Interesting Analysis of Former Governor of Missouri.

Says That the Foundation of Folk's Character Is Religious Morality---Is the Seventh Son of Seventh Son---A Queer Human Mixture, but a Strong One, With Never Failing Faith In the People.

HON JOSEPH W. FOLK.

In an article in McClure's Magazine William Allen White of Kansas discusses the foundation of the character of the Hon. Joseph W. Folk, who became governor of Missouri at the age of thirty-six and at the same time took his rightful place as one of the half dozen real leaders of civic honesty in America. Governor Folk, who is now chief counsel for the United States interstate commerce commission, is to lecture here on the last day of our Chautauqua.

Mr. White declares that the foundation of Folk's character is religious morality and says: "This is unusual today. Many contemporary statesmen and moralists are pagans. They have a philosophy of life deep and broad and cosmopolitan--which Folk has not--and they are Christian only because they have a sort of protective minority of creed that merges them into their environment. But Folk is deeply pious without being in the least sanctimonious and without any cant.

"His language is as clean as a woman's, and it comes from a carefully weeded heart. Fearing the effect on young men who might see him smoking, Folk has given up his cigar and pipe. He is as modest as a girl, and yet he is world wise enough to know the force of the example of a public man, and he willingly sacrifices his comfort that he may not violate this trivial obligation to the people.

"Seventh Son of Seventh Son." "His father was a lawyer in Brownsville, Tenn., and was of North Carolina extraction, while his mother was an Estes, from Virginia, and both families were in the Revolutionary war, though before the Revolution the Folks came from Germany. Folk is the seventh son of a seventh son. The boy Joseph got the education of a boy in a wholesome American country town and went to Vanderbilt university--the Yale of the south--and took the law course and a little work in the college department. He was graduated with the law class of 1890, and after practicing for a time in Brownsville he went to St. Louis, opened an office and built up a profitable business. He became the attorney and representative of some striking street car employees, and through the prominence the case gave him he was made the Democratic nominee for circuit attorney for St. Louis.

"Ed Butler, the deposed Irish boss whom Folk convicted of bribery, says that Folk is sincere, and in St. Louis among men who hold that standing by one's friends, right or wrong, is sincerity, one hears this said of Folk often. If a friend turns crooked he need not look to Folk for protection, no matter what the personal debt of favor or friendship may have been between them. If the quality of heart which places public duty above personal regard is sincerity Folk is the soul of duplicity. He is ambitious, but his ambition does not sap his moral sense. His passion is for public service, so much more than for public honor, or that he would compromise no more with ambition than he would with friendship.

"Folk works by rules of life. He has decided, for instance, that people have small faith in a public man who chances his mind so he considers long before making a public decision, and then he never changes it. When Governor Folk says the murderer shall

The Good Birds Do.
The department of agriculture informs us that out of fifty species of hawks and owls only four are actually injurious to crops. One observer tells us that he has seen with his own eyes an owl of his acquaintance swallowing nine field mice, one after another, until the tail of the last remained in evidence. However, in four hours, this meal having been digested with no apparent effort, the owl was ready for four more mice. The old hawk and his wife will consume a round dozen of mice each during a single day, and in two months' time their youthful brood will devour a similar quantity. It has been stated that a colony of hawks will kill 10,000 rodents in three months' time. We all know what damage mice perpetrate in our grain fields. The farmer may well spare a chicken or two from his henyard in payment for service rendered him by these birds of prey.--Countryside Magazine and Suburban Life.

The House Centipede.
The common house centipede is not a creature to be dreaded, although its bite is more or less poisonous, but there are so few cases on record of its biting human beings that the danger from this source may be said to be negligible. On the other hand, the centipede is a valuable destroyer of other and far more disagreeable vermin. According to a bulletin of the United States department of agriculture, it feeds on houseflies, cockroaches, moths, bedbugs and other such pests. It does not eat holes in blankets, curtains, carpets or furniture. The centipede thrives in damp places, such as bathrooms, closets, cellars and conservatories; it loves hot water pipes and steam radiators. It is not an insect, but one of the order of myriapods. If by chance a person be bitten by a centipede, bathing the spot with ammonia will speedily cure it.

Mother and Efficiency.
The efficiency experts appear to have overlooked the most important field of all. While the railroads have been subjected to the closest scrutiny, while the automobile industry has been reduced to the lowest cost minimum, and filing systems, group work, overhead charges, etc., have all received their meed, mother appears to have escaped. Mother still goes pretty much as she pleases. Her whims still continue to regulate the prices of the leading commodities. Whether a large portion of the community shall travel, how much they shall eat and what they shall wear still depends upon mother, who buys nine-tenths of everything that is bought. Until the "mother efficient" is inaugurated, how can we expect to make much progress?--Life.

Stars Hotter Than the Sun.
Scientific research shows that the sun has a temperature of 4900 degrees; Aldebaran, that beautiful star in Taurus, 5150 degrees; the polar star, 5200 degrees, and the dog star Sirius, 7500 degrees. This goes to show that the sun is undoubtedly one of the coldest of the stars. It also is evidence that absurdly low temperatures of the earth which living things here consider hot are, as compared with the heavenly bodies, regions of frigidity. Even the electric furnace, with its 3500 degrees of heat, is as ice compared with temperatures in the dog star and the others.--New York American.

QUESTION CLEARED UP.

Gettysburg Readers Can no Longer Doubt the Evidence.
Again and again we have read of strangers in distant towns who have been cured by this or that medicine. But Gettysburg's pertinent question has always been "Has anyone here in Gettysburg been cured?" The word of a stranger living a hundred miles away may be true, but it cannot have the same weight with us as the word of our own citizens, whom we know and respect, and whose evidence we can so easily prove.

F. G. McCammon, Gettysburg, says: "I first used Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago and I still take them occasionally although I seldom need a kidney medicine. I suffered for quite a while from weak kidneys and a painful back. I tried several remedies and doctored, but with little success until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy rid me of the pains and aches."

Miss Elsie Bish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Bish, of near Littlestown has been awarded the Common School diploma issued by County Superintendent Roth. Miss Bish is just eleven years old and is the youngest student to pass the central and final examinations in Adams Co. as the average age is fourteen years.

THE U. S. GOVERNMENT in its "Pure Food Law" does not "indorse" or "guarantee" any preparation, or as some manufacturers in their advertisements would make it appear. In the case of medicines the law provides that certain drugs shall be mentioned on the labels, if they are ingredients of the preparations. Ely's Cream Balm, the well-known family remedy for cold in the head, hay fever and nasal catarrh, doesn't contain a single injurious drug, so the makers have simply to print the fact that it complies fully with all the requirements of the law.

3 BIG PEN-MAR REUNIONS

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED FOR CHURCH REUNION.

Reformed July 15, Lutheran July 22, and Presbyterian July 29.

Arrangements are being completed for the three church reunions to be held at Pen-Mar during the last three Thursdays of next month. The first will be held by the Reformed denomination, Thursday, July 15. The annual reunion of the Lutheran church will be held Thursday, July 22, and will be followed on Thursday, July 29, by the reunion of the Presbyterians. The reunions are attended by members of the three denominations in Southern Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. Excursions will be run from many points on the Western Maryland railway system to Pen-Mar on the days of each reunion. The regular trains also will carry many persons to Pen-Mar.

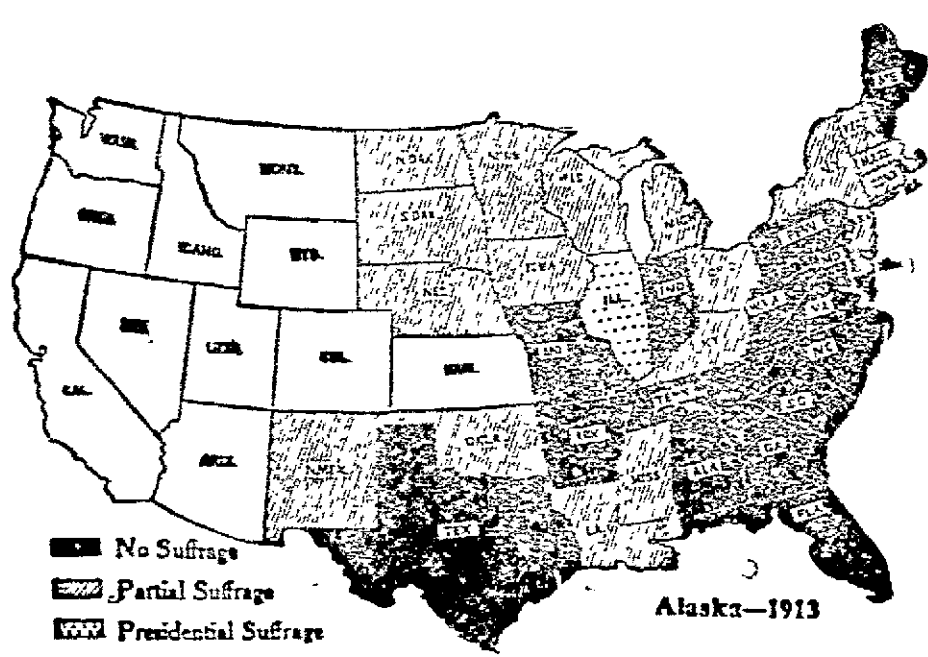

About 12,000 persons are expected to attend the Reformed reunion and efforts are being made by the committee in charge to make the gathering this year one of the most successful and largest attended ever held by the denomination at Pen-Mar. The program as yet is incomplete but it is expected that a final meeting of the committee will be held within the near future when all arrangements will be made. Morning session as usual will be taken up by addresses to be delivered by prominent divines and laymen of the denomination. "College hour" will be celebrated in the afternoon when students and graduates of the various colleges and schools of the denomination will gather together. Songs will be sung and "wells" given. This hour is always one of the features of the reunion. The rest of the day will be given over to having a general good time. The committee in charge of arranging the program and conducting the reunion is made up as follows: The Rev. Elmer Coblentz, of Middletown, Md., president; J. S. Corum, of Washington, D. C., vice president; the Rev. Mr. Mullin, of Baltimore, secretary; W. S. Brennan, of Mechanicsburg, treasurer, the Rev. Mr. Gluck, of Martinsburg, W. Va., and W. A. Woods, of Chambersburg. The latter two committeemen were appointed to fill vacancies caused by the deaths of the Rev. Dr. Hoffneus, of Martinsburg, W. Va., and the Rev. J. B. Shontz, of Chambersburg.

All arrangements have been completed for the twenty-ninth annual gathering of the Lutheran denomination. It is expected that between 15,000 and 20,000 persons will participate. The reunion will include a district within a radius of 100 miles of Pen-Mar. This district includes over 300 parishes, 275 pastors and over 100,000 communicants. The male quartet of Union Lutheran church, of York composed of Elmer C. Bupp, E. W. Spangler, Charles Shettel and Franklin Ziegler, will be in charge of the vocal music during the day. The instrumental music will be furnished by the Boys' band of the Tressler Orphan's home, Loysville, Perry county. The band will journey to Pen-Mar in a motor-truck, the property of the home, and will give concerts in the cities and towns of the Cumberland valley through which they pass on Wednesday, July 21. Prominent divines of the Lutheran denomination in the eastern section of the United States have consented to deliver addresses at the reunion. Among the speakers will be the Rev. Dr. H. H. Wever, of York, secretary of the church extension board and board of home missions, and the Rev. Dr. J. A. Singmaster, president of the Lutheran Theological seminary, Gettysburg. The Rev. Dr. George W. Enders, pastor of Christ Lutheran church, of York, is the only surviving member of the original reunion committee, which was appointed over 21 years ago. Other members of the committee, which planned the reunion for this year are: The Rev. J. B. Baker, of Gettysburg; the Rev. G. B. Marquard, of Shippensburg; the Rev. Oliver Roth, of Chambersburg; the Rev. M. L. Enders, of Cumberland; the Rev. Charles B. Trump, of Martinsburg, W. Va., and the Rev. A. M. Hellman, of Hanover.

The Presbyterian reunion is expected to be the largest ever held by that denomination. Excursions will carry persons to Pen-Mar from points in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and the District of Columbia. The program has not as yet been completed, but one of the principal speakers will be William T. Ellis, of Swarthmore, who was on the program several years ago. The members of committee arranging program are as follows: The Rev. Thomas J. Ferguson, of Mechanicsburg; the Rev. Harry R. King, of Harrisburg; the Rev. Dr. T. C. McCarrell, of Middletown; the Rev. Alfred F. Waldo, of Chicago; the Rev. J. C. Eckels, of Carlisle; the Rev. Dr. George M. Reed, of Newville; the Rev. C. A. Bosserman, of Shippensburg; the Rev. Dr. J. R. Davidson, of Greencastle; the Rev. J. G. Ross, of Mercersburg; the Rev. E. M. Hensel, York county, of York; Thomas R. Moore, Charleston, W. Va.; Mervin F. Robinson, Shippensburg; the Rev. Dr. J. H. Lacey, Winchester, Va.; the Rev. David T. Neely, of Baltimore, and John G. Orr, of Chambersburg.

GOOD HEALTH ADVICE

DR. DIXON TALKS ON CHILDREN'S VACATIONS.

Valuable Hints of How to Avoid Typhoid—How to Reach a Ripe Old Age.

"One ship drives east and another west. With the self-same wind that blows; 'Tis the set of the sails and not the gales That sends them the way they go."

School will soon be over and several hundred thousand boys and girls will be out for a three months holiday. After their winter's work in school they need change and diversion and healthful exercises. Perhaps during the school year, like any parents, you have shifted the burden of your children's supervision upon their teachers. Now for three months the full responsibility must rest upon the parental shoulders.

It's a serious problem how boys and girls shall spend their vacations. Of course if you don't take a hand in it they will settle the question for themselves. There are always other boys and girls, perhaps many of them that you are in no way acquainted with and of course there are always both good and bad diversions at hand for healthy youngsters.

Through their parents lack of interest many children form bad habits and cultivate evil associates during school vacations. Boys and girls minds need entertaining occupation and their bodies need plenty of healthful exercise. The parents should try to guide this natural craving and where circumstances make it possible to join and share in some of the vacation amusements of their children.

While the majority of us must continue our regular occupations, the summer usually offers some chance to get into the open and back to Nature.

Every boy and girl naturally has something of the love of our primitive forefathers for the woods and streams. Cultivate this and share it. Since our schools have been teaching natural history you will find them especially keen. They will have things of interest to tell you. All this will serve to give to you an agreeable change and it will encourage the girls and boys to take an interest in the wonders of God's great out-of-doors. You can do nothing better for their health, enjoyment and future happiness than to stimulate their interest in these things.

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by—Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D., Commissioner of Health.

How to Avoid Typhoid.

Dr. J. M. J. Rannick, health officer of Harrisburg gives a list of tips of how to avoid typhoid fever, as follows: A single drink of polluted water or milk may cause typhoid.

Infected ice cream even in small amounts may cause typhoid.

Most of our present typhoid cases are traced to polluted water outside the city.

All untreated water must be considered unsafe.

Spring or well water can be used with safety only after having been boiled, or chemically treated.

Bathers and canoeists should always remember the danger of typhoid in raw river water.

Outing parties can always be assured of safe water by adopting the cheap practical Chlorinated Lime method.

Before starting on a country jaunt, ask your druggist to prepare a fresh solution of Chlorinated Lime—1-2 grain to 4 ounces of water.

One teaspoonful of this fresh solution of Chlorinated Lime added to a pint of water is harmless and will within ten minutes insure the safety of polluted water.

Travelers and vacationists should consult their physicians about typhoid vaccination.

Typhoid Marys are persons who having had typhoid fever, continue to carry the germs and through carelessness in personal habits, can infect others. Fortunately only a small number of Typhoid Marys exist.

Night soil is used by many truckers as fertilizer.

Lettuce, radishes and many other vegetables are frequently infected, where night soil is used as fertilizer.

All vegetables, fruits and berries should be thoroughly washed before being eaten.

Insist upon personal cleanliness in all personal handling food-stuffs. Observe personal cleanliness at all times—especially before handling foods.

Avoid unnecessary handling of foods.

Avoid eating any food exposed to dust or dirt.

Hence pasteurization of all milk and cream.

Keep all milk and cream ice cold at all times.

Don't mix "left over" milk with other milk.

Protect all foods from dirt, handling and flies.

Screen all doors and windows. Keep your garbage securely covered. Starve that Typhoid Fly.

How to Reach a Ripe Old Age.

Dr. John H. Musser, the eminent Philadelphia physician in advising Dr. Y. M. C. A. physical directors on how to live to a ripe old age last week said: "Don't eat too much, don't overwork and don't play too hard. Cut out the booze, take plenty of exercise, chew your food well. Watch the little ailments that may develop into something bigger—and, maybe, you'll live to a ripe old age."

"We've found out how to control infectious diseases, to a great degree," Doctor Musser said, "and the problem now is how to combat what are known to medical science as degenerative diseases. Through vaccination, typhoid is losing its grip on the human race—there have been only three typhoid cases in the United States army for two years. Pneumonia and tuberculosis are being robbed of their terrors through medical skill.

"The trend of medical science within the next few years," he continued, "is going to be toward finding out how people live and what they do."

"Figures show," he continued, "that you who have not reached the age of 40 have much less chance of living here than those of the same age in England, Wales and Germany."

"It's due to the excessive life strain in this country—what Theodore Roosevelt calls the 'strenuous life.' We work harder, play harder, eat harder, drink harder."

Doctor Musser followed this with some advice on how to live long and to avoid these degenerative diseases. Watch for chronic infections, he said, such as tooth abscesses, infected tonsils, constipation and chronic bronchitis.

"The tonsils are the greatest source of infection in the whole body. You can get almost anything, from infantile paralysis to articular rheumatism, from infected tonsils.

"Pay attention to personal hygiene. Take plenty of exercise. Bathe frequently. There is nothing more stimulating to the body than a cold bath in the morning. Don't overeat, and take time to chew your food. The way some men bolt their food at a quick lunch restaurant is a crime.

"Too many Americans eat too much meat. It certainly is not necessary for the average man, who doesn't take much exercise, who sits in an office all day, to eat much meat.

"As for drinking, it isn't necessary to talk about that. Most of the men we see here in the Philadelphia Hospital, broken down by disease, are chronic boozers. The man who escapes is an exception."

Physicians Must Register.

Beginning July 1, physicians must be registered with the Internal Revenue Department, the Deputy Collector having the necessary blanks. After July 1 it will be an offense against a Federal Statute for a physician not registered to dispense or prescribe any medicine containing the drugs covered by the Harrison act, opium in all forms, and violations are heavily punished under the law. There will be little leniency in the government's dealing with violators of the federal drug act relating to the use or handling of smoking opium. All persons convicted of violating the laws regulating the use of this drug will be subject to a mandatory fine of not less than $10,000, or imprisonment for not less than five years. Both penalties may be imposed at the discretion of the court.

The act of Jan. 17, 1914, on which a court decision has just been rendered, provides that an internal revenue tax of $300 a pound shall be levied and collected on all opium manufactured in the United States for smoking purposes, and that no person shall engage in such manufacture who is not a citizen of the United States and who has not given the bond required by the commissioner of internal revenue. The amount of the bond is specified as $100,000, but this sum may be increased indefinitely at the discretion of the local collector. This, in itself would make the manufacture of opium unprofitable.

Every person who prepares opium for smoking purposes from crude gum opium, or from any preparation thereof, or from the residue of smoked or partly smoked opium, commonly known as yen shue, shall according to the act, be regarded as manufacturers of opium.

In explaining the act local internal revenue authorities stated that it is now practically impossible for a violator to escape punishment. The new decision closes virtually every loophole of escape for those who deal illegitimately in opium. A person caught with only an opium pipe in his possession will be subject to punishment under the new act. Furthermore, it appears that both smoker and manufacturers of the drug for smoking purposes will be accorded the same punishment.

While the act in itself appears sufficiently strong to stamp out the manufacture and use of smoking opium, there is another act, which even tightens the screws. This act prohibits the importation of opium for any other than medical purposes. It makes special prohibition of smoking opium, or opium prepared for that purpose. Again, the Harrison drug act requires all persons who deal in any form of the drug whatever to be registered with the local collector of internal revenue.

American For Business in Far East.

President George C. Taylor of the American Express Company has given out the statement that, in view of the active trend of American capital and American merchandise toward the Orient, the Company has decided to add to its round the world chain of offices by establishing new branches at Manila, P. I. and at Hongkong, China. Following immediately upon the semi-official visit to this country of the Chinese Industrial Commission for the purpose of filling the gap left in Chinese commerce by the upheaval of the European exporting interests, the announcement is particularly significant.

"It ever the United States is to take its proper place as an exporting nation to China and southern Asia," said Mr. Taylor, "the best time to do it is when the door is wide open and when the outside world is seeking for what we have to offer. This is emphatically so in the case of establishing new connections with Eastern peoples who are our merchants have discovered, clinging conservatively to the pathways of trade to which they have become accustomed.

"We are the only nation at present with a free hand to whom they can look for permanent commercial ties. Already American interests have succeeded in making Manila a commercial center of considerable magnitude. Mr. R. A. Foulks, of our European service, whom the American Express Company sent to the Orient to make a first-hand survey of the situation, reports to us that Manila as the headquarters for American interests has made remarkable progress and is becoming a factor to be reckoned with as the trade centre of the Far East.

We believe we are safe in asserting that it will be a matter of only a few years when Manila will be among the leaders as a clearing house for American trade. Our investigations were thorough, including not only the problems of transportation but the vital issue of exchange facilities, banking conditions and credits. Hitherto American exporters have been carrying on their business largely through European banks with Asiatic branches.

The dominant exchange has been Pounds-Sterling. In establishing its new branch houses at these two centers, which are only two days sail apart, it is the purpose of the American Express Company not only to perform such financial services as it is now doing at its European offices, but to act as an intermediary between United States manufacturers and Asiatic importers.

"American trade is doubly welcomed at this time throughout all of Southern Asia. China is hungry for American capital and with the establishment of a permanent form of Republican government we are convinced that China will soon prove as rich and profitable a field for American exporters as it has proved in the past for Europe. It is also our conviction that conditions will soon warrant us in extending our organization to other Asiatic cities for the purpose of providing better transportation and financial facilities for the extension of American foreign trade."

Mothers' Pensions Adopted.

Reviewing the new legislation this year, the Philadelphia Public Ledger finds that the subject of "mothers' pensions" came up for consideration in 13 States. In eight—Kansas, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New York, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Wyoming—legislation for this purpose was enacted for the first time. In two—Texas and West Virginia—mothers' pension measures were killed. In the rest the former laws were amended or amplified.

California, Colorado, Connecticut, North Carolina, Nevada and West Virginia acted on divorce laws, California amplifying hers so that judges were granted power to call in the District Attorney where fraud or collusion is suspected. Colorado amended hers so that a decree shall not be issued until six months after the divorce has been granted. Connecticut added incurable insanity to the list of grounds for divorce. West Virginia created in each county the office of Divorce Commissioner to prevent fraud and collusion.

Labor laws for women were enacted in Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts and Wyoming. Maine voted into her statutes a 54-hour-a-week law for both women and boys under 16 working in mills, factories and laundries. Wyoming enacted for her working women an eight-hour day, and both maximum hour and minimum wage laws for women were passed by Kansas. A commission to investigate a proposed minimum wage law for women was created by Idaho.

New Mexico passed an act increasing the property rights of the wife, and Wyoming and Idaho placed wife and husband on an equal footing. New Jersey authorized the appointment of women policemen. Oregon forbade discrimination between male and female public school teachers in the payment of salaries. An attempt in California to enact a law to forbid women to shake dice for money or prizes was defeated. So was a bill providing for women jurors.

Greatest Year For Women.

This is the greatest of years for women, according to those who favor woman suffrage and more liberal laws regarding labor, marriage and property rights.

Seven States are to vote on constitutional amendments to grant the ballot to women—four this year and three next. The campaigns are already on in Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. When it is recalled that this is the first time the suffragists have really won a foothold in the East, it is surprising that four of the largest and most conservative States should submit amendments to the voters at the same time.

In New York the women are enlisting whole battalions of orators, and holding daily meetings that will continue until election day, next November. The campaign in Pennsylvania was inaugurated with one of the largest and most imposing parades women have ever held. Some of the ablest women orators from other States are lending their aid, and the suffrage leaders will keep things moving from Boston to Pittsburgh.

What a Revival Is.

The word "revival" is often given a meaning which primarily does not belong to it. Many emphasize the conversion of sinners as the essential element in revival work, but that is the secondary meaning of the word. Essentially "revival" means the quickening of God's people. You cannot revive a dead man. The unregenerate sinner is spiritually dead. He must be born again. Now, you may revive a partially drowned body or a partially frozen body. The regenerate soul's life often weakens and wanes until the flame almost flickers out. But if there be the least spark of life left it can be fanned into a flame, and, like the apparently dead cinder in the smith's forge, that spark will touch others and kindle a flame that will embrace a church, a city or even a nation. A revival of religion, then, must logically begin with the church. Such is the divine order.—Christian Herald.

Freaks of Language.

A peculiar kind of blundering known as "folk etymology" is responsible for some of the queerest freaks of language. An easy example will make this clear. Our American word "carrall" for a kind of vehicle is not a compound of "carry" and "all," but a slight distortion of the French "carriole," a diminutive car. The change was made in obedience to the universal tendency to assimilate the unknown to the known, to make words mean something by associating them with others which they resemble in sound. Often there is no etymological relation between the words associated, as when sparrowgrass is made out of asparagus. This particular corruption was once in such good colloquial use that Walker, the lexicographer, wrote, "Sparrowgrass is so general that asparagus has an air of stiffness and pedantry."

Movies Taken For Ghosts.

According to a missionary, the first display of moving pictures in the province of Szechuan, China, 2,000 miles up the Yangtze, caused a mob disturbance of alarming proportions.

When the bodiless, yet vigorous shadows began to move silently across the screen in the visible but immaterial simulation of life murmurs arose, soon increasing to shouts and uproar, that foreign devils had possessed the locality and were in league with the spirits of the dead. Actual destruction and perhaps bloodshed was prevented only by the clubbed guns of the native soldiery. Later, when the pictures were explained, the natives became ardent fans. The first feature films shown in Szechuan caused the outburst of superstitious rage.—Photoplay Magazine.

Devil Ships and Fire Ships.

Two warlike contrivances of ancient days were devil ships and fire ships. A devil ship is a ship that has been filled with explosives, which discharge either by means of a fuse, or clock-work, or when the ship hits another ship or obstacle. They were employed as long ago as 1555 by the Dutch, when the Prince of Parma besieged Antwerp. In those days they were sent down the river to explode against a wooden bridge built by the defenders of Belgium's most important city. The fire ships were usually filled with dry wood smothered in pitch, oil and other inflammable material, and when fired were sent drifting against any defense-work or ships of the enemy.—London Opinion.

Old English Fairs.

Fairs and fests were formerly held in churchyards in honor of the saint to whom the church was dedicated. In consequence of these popular gatherings being much abused they had to be suppressed in the thirteenth year of the reign of King Edward III., as appears by the following extract quoted by Spelman: "And the Kyng com-mandeth and forbiddeth that from henceforth neither fairs and markets shall be kept in churchyards for the honour of the Church. Given at Westminster, the VIII of Octobre, the XIII reare of Kyng Edward's reigne."—London Mail.

Lightning.

Lightning appears in three forms—zigzag and sharply defined at the edges, in sheets of light, illuminating a whole cloud, which seems to open and reveal the light within it, and in the form of fire balls. The duration of the first two kinds scarcely continues the thousandth part of a second, but the globular lightning moves much more slowly, remaining visible for several seconds.

The Boob.

"Yes," said the young lady, "I spent the entire evening telling him that he had a terrible reputation for kissing girls against their will."

"And what did he do?"

"He sat there like a boob and denied it."—Kansas City Journal.

Bad Situation.

"I think I'll have to get rid of Fido," pouted the great emotional actress.

"Why, the kid is getting all kinds of mention in the papers."

"That's it. I am not receiving as many press notices as my dog."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It merely weighs them down and crushes them so they cannot complain, which is a semblance of patience.—Deseret News.

Like the Law of Advertising.

The following interesting story about President Garfield is told in the American Magazine:

James R. Garfield of Cleveland, son of the late President Garfield, told one of the editors of the American Magazine the following story about traveling in 1878 as a boy with his father, who was campaigning. One night after a speech in Michigan young Garfield said to his father: "Why do you repeat so much? Do you know that you said the same things several times tonight? Do you know that you said the same things tonight that you said this afternoon in Detroit?" General Garfield made this reply: "You happen to be an especially interested party and notice these repetitions. Others do not. I repeat the same statements deliberately in order that people may finally get them. Anything that I want an audience to get and remember I repeat several times, in somewhat different form perhaps. This practice I have developed out of my experience, which has shown me that people's attention is distracted in various ways and that a first or a second statement may not really get to them. You must insist on an idea or fact if you want to get anywhere with it."

When the Thames Went Dry.

In Stow's Annals is an account of an earthquake which shook down many churches and houses while the river Thames "was dried uppe, that all London might walke over the same dry shod." This was in the year 1358. In 1501 came an amazing ebb tide, when the river was again so low that a man might ride over it on horseback at London bridge. In 1687 a tremendous gale blew for thirty-six hours. The great storm blew straight down the valley of the Thames and kept the water back, so that the bed was dry. On Sept. 14, 1716, the same thing happened again, and, according to the Weekly Packet, a paper of that date, people crossed the river afoot both below and above the bridge, while the sands lay so clear to view that a silver tankard, a silver burred sword, a gold ring, a guinea and other long lost articles of value were picked up.

Seven.

Numerous are the queer beliefs concerning the number seven. From the very earliest ages the seven great planets were known and ruled this world and the dwellers in it, and their number entered into every conceivable matter that concerned man. There are seven days in the week, "seven holes in the head," for the master stars are seven," seven ages both for man and the world in which he lives. There are seven material heavens. There are seven colors in the spectrum and seven notes in the diatonic octave, and the "leading" note of the scale is the seventh. Be it noted that the seventh son is not always gifted with beneficial powers. In Portugal he is believed to be subject to the powers of darkness and to be compelled every Saturday evening to assume the likeness of an ass.—St. James Gazette.

The Human Mind.

What is the mind? In "The New Psychology," by Herbert L. Wilbur, the author declares it to be the sum total of all the impressions we get and says the sum total is constantly increasing. This, he concludes, explains the fact that all men are of a different size mentally—the fact that old men know more than young men—also that a few young men know more than some other men ever knew all their lives.

Herein, too, is where men have the advantage of women—men moving about in the world outside, where the sum total is greatest—women staying more on the inside, in the house, but, as above, some women know more than some men. The salvation of all of us is to hike—to the right place.

False Alarm.

The poverty stricken artist gnawed at his last crust of bread. A thump resounded on the door. With a cry of joy he sprang to his feet.

"'Tis opportunity knocking," he said and opened the door.

"If you don't pay me that $7 for back rent our go!" thundered his landlord.

ADDRESS OF COL. A. A. DALE.

not still hear the songs of victory and the proclamation of peace, as they wafted from ocean to ocean in one glad anthem of praise and rejoicing. And when the boys came marching home again with a halo of glory on their banners, what a feeling of hope and comfort filled your hearts?

Then came the hours, when thrilling joy repaid the long, long course of darkness, doubts and fears. The heart faint sickness of the hopes delayed. The waste, the woe, the bloodshed and the tears.

My friends: I would not again irritate the wounds made by a terrible and desolating war. Neither would I open afresh the fountains from which flowed the tears of bitter anguish or anxious solicitude. But in order that we may fully appreciate our duties; that we may be impressed with the lessons it is calculated to teach; that we may realize our indebtedness and strive to discharge that indebtedness by a more exalted patriotism, a better citizenship, it is proper that we at times review some of the incidents connected with the fiercest and deadliest struggle ever experienced by the American people, a struggle that involved the very existence of our government and the supremacy of national authority. When ominous clouds overhung our political sky; when the muttering thunders of discord disturbed the peace of our country, threatening dissolution and ruin; when our noble ship of state was being tossed higher and thither on the surging waves of violent and unreasoning passion, the nation trembled for its interests. With pallid cheek and quivering lip and throbbing heart, men were going to and fro anxiously inquiring: "When can the nation depend to avert or quell the approaching storm and afford succor in the hour of peril?"

The answer came quickly, came promptly, came cheerfully. It was upon you, the survivors and your honored comrades who have passed beyond; it was upon you who felt that the nation's interests were your interests; it was upon you who were willing to exchange the comforts and peaceful associations of home for the dangers and hardships of the battlefield and were willing even to sacrifice your lives. If necessary, in defense of the Union you had learned to live and perished. It was upon you who stood as a wall of protection between our enemies and our country. It was upon you who with the sword of justice struck the shackles from the degraded slave and brought to a happy realization the dream of our free Republic. A generation of free, patriotic people, the only one in the history of the world, was born upon you. It was upon you that the government of some 250,000,000 people that had been agitated by the country's conditions, was brought to a happy realization of the dream of our free Republic.

is entitled to an especial honor which the lovers of liberty all over the world heartily accord to him.

The record of our soldier dead has passed into history. Their fame is secure, beyond our power to add or detract. No language, however eloquent, can increase or diminish their glory. It is inscribed on the banner that floats in the breeze and indelibly impressed upon the hearts of their countrymen; and as long as there are hearts to love or memories to cherish, so long will they be held in grateful remembrance. Memory is the storehouse of the mind where their monuments are kept and preserved.

Honor to our patriot fathers who secured our independence and established this government; honor to the worthy sons of those noble sires who protected and defended its rights; honor to those brave boys through whose patriotic sacrifices, we have one nation, one flag, one hope, and that hope the perpetuity of the union and the continued prosperity of our beloved country.

Bring your floral offerings then, the sweet forget-me-nots, the fragrant rose, blended with the myrtle and the evergreen, fit emblems of a nation's loving remembrance. Strew them with unstinted hand where the remains of your heroes repose. And let not this sacred custom languish through neglect. As the successive years roll round and returning spring, teeming with freshness and beauty, imparts new life to slumbering nature, let your minds turn with increased zeal to this day with its cherished memories, its hallowed associations. Scenes like this, and those you have witnessed to-day, will be an education, an inspiration, to those who, in course of time, must take your places. Lispering childhood and buoyant youth will here learn lessons of patriotism and devotion, while advancing age will reverently listen to the story of how fields were won and victors crowned. Whoever has felt the touches of friendship or the promptings of love, love to fellowmen and love to country, will here catch the inspiration for a still nobler manhood and a better citizenship.

And now my fellow citizens, at the risk of wearying your patience I want to detain you a few minutes longer. It is doubtful whether I will ever have the opportunity of speaking to you again on an occasion like this, and I want to impress upon your minds a few practical thoughts that suggest themselves.

It is well enough for us to inquire, "What are the relative duties arising from the circumstances that have called us together to-day?" What lessons are we to carry away with us? How are we to profit by these experiences? Think, then, of the importance of these duties which we are to carry away with us. Think of the importance of these duties which we are to carry away with us. Think of the importance of these duties which we are to carry away with us.

wildest flights of fancy, yet, in the active, living, throbbing present, and beyond the boundary that separates the present life, lie new domains for exploration, and improvement, new fields in the social and political world to cultivate and fertilize. To diffuse knowledge; to elevate the individual and thereby exalt the nation; to purify society; to raise the standard of morality; to purge the political field of the thorns and briars that have taken root there and are robbing the nation of its purity and its honor; to right the wrongs of the oppressed; to raise the fallen and the distressed; these, my fellow-citizens, are the duties that lie before us and demand our best energies. We cannot shirk the responsibility. We must obey or suffer the consequences. If we fail to perform our duties; if we fail to correct these abuses, we may, when it is too late, find ourselves engulfed in a whirlpool of political corruption and anarchy from which there will be no redemption, and like the Roman empire, be known to future generations, only, as a nation of the past that went down amid the wreck and ruin of internal dissensions.

But, my friends, from such a gloomy picture, let us turn to a brighter, a more encouraging prospect. May we not hopefully anticipate the time, when all the social, political and economic questions that have been disturbing our country in years past shall be satisfactorily settled; when labor and capital will realize the fact that they are mutually dependent and that one cannot prosper without the assistance of the other; when the principles of the golden rule shall be the dominating and controlling factors throughout our land; when purity, virtue and patriotism shall be the most distinguishing characteristics of our people; when to our material splendor shall be added, in all its fullness, that righteousness which exalteth a nation; when all the elements, that exalt and ennoble individual and national life shall harmoniously work together for the general good; when our glorious temple of liberty complete in all its departments, shall stand before the world in perfect symmetry and beauty, its dome crowned with the canopy of equal and exact justice to all its beacon light shedding a benison radiance over the whole world. Then shall all the nations of the earth say, Behold what an example. Then shall the bright visions of our forefathers be fully realized. Then, my fellow citizens, then, our dead, our patriot dead, shall not have died in vain.

In Big Case.

Jacob G. Slosser, a citizen of Gettysburg, and an agent of the U. S. Government, is having a part in one of the most notorious prosecutions the government has undertaken for years. It is estimated that $25,000,000 has been lost to the government in revenue since 1902 when the anti-trust law went into effect. Millions of pounds of colored oleo have been manufactured and fraudulently sold as uncolored oleo, the tax on the colored is 10 cents a pound and on the uncolored 14 cents. It is estimated that there have been in the United States alone, since 1902, more than three million dollars' worth of colored oleo sold as uncolored, and that the government has lost more than $25,000,000 in revenue.

WOLF IN THE FOLD

By GERALD MONTAGUE.

"You will find no woman willing to stand for a life in a shepherd's hut," his friends told Larry Owen, when he announced his intention of getting married and retaining his job.

Larry smiled, and when his friends saw his bride they changed their opinion. Dorothy was a mite of a thing, just like a little gray mouse—Welsh, like Larry, and a girl whom he had been engaged to before he went to Montana to work on the sheep ranges.

Larry did not intend to keep Dorothy in seclusion upon the hills forever. Just as the seaman has thoughts of a quiet farm where he can spend the latter years of his life, so Larry had always dreamed of a snug little country place with an orchard, bees, and chickens, and no sign of a sheep within a hundred miles. He was an expert farmer, besides being a shepherd, and he had twelve hundred dollars stored snugly away—almost enough to start the farm.

There was a certain orange farm in a California county on which he had his eye for some months. How Dorothy would love the life there, the warm companionship of the westerner beyond the ranges, the sun, the ease. He had paid a flying trip there six months before. But he said nothing of this to Dorothy.

A man should take his wife into his confidence. As a rule the surprise element does not work out satisfactorily. Rather it is the man who gets the surprises.

This case was no exception. Dorothy soon began to weary of the eternal hills. They had been married six months when Larry discovered that she was running a bill at the nearest town for clothes, far in excess of what he had planned for her.

"Well, I'm just sick of the monotony here," she said defiantly. "I can't live here forever, seeing nothing but the sheep. Won't you get another job?"

The Welsh girl was homesick for the old friendly society. She longed for the faces she had known; she felt that she had stepped into a vast, perpetual prison.

It has been said a man and woman cannot live in utter seclusion and retain their love for each other. In spite of their love of a dozen years.

Rode Five Miles to His Nearest Neighbor.

dating back to boy and girl times, they began to drift apart.

Where there are sheep the wolf comes. It was no exception here. Jim Collins was six feet one, flashy and "taking" with women. He had a sinister reputation among the folks of the district. But he was the man for whom Larry was working. He had not often paid a visit to the range, preferring to gamble away his money at Butte, where he had a string of racers and two or three automobiles. He had the patronage of the country, too. Many women had given their love to Collins. They had lived to regret it—but Dorothy only saw in him a big, good-natured man, longing for sympathy and to be understood.

Once Larry, returning from the range sooner than had been expected, found Collins in the hut, bending over Dorothy as she made tea. He looked up brazenly and laughed. Larry said nothing then. Later he taxed his wife with caring for Collins. That was a mistake. A man should hold his peace until the time comes to strike. But all Larry's wounded soul, all the suffering he had endured during those days of estrangement came to his lips in a flood of bitterness.

Next morning he went to work without a word having been spoken. When he was gone Dorothy slipped out of the hut. An hour later she stepped into an automobile that was waiting for her below the hill.

When Larry came home that night, his heart overflowing with contrition, he found the hut empty. A little note was pinned to the dresser.

"I don't love Jim Collins," it read, "but he can give me something better than sheep. We leave Butte for California on the night train and you will never see me again. But you won't want to, as long as you have your sheep."

Larry stood staring at the note for a long time, and into his mind came the picture of Dorothy as he had seen her in Wales, the innocent girl in the big sunbonnet whom he had loved. What had he done? How had this thing come between them?

He saddled his horse and rode five miles to his nearest neighbor.

"Keep charge of my sheep a day or two," he said. "I'm going to Butte."

"Something wrong with the wife?" asked the neighbor sympathetically.

"Yes," answered Larry, riding away. However, he had no intention of going to Butte. He knew that the night train from Butte stopped to take on water at a siding a few miles down the valley. He could catch her if he rode hard. And, once aboard—well, Larry had a revolver in his coat pocket.

Yet his object was less to be revenged upon Collins than to preserve Dorothy's good name, to save her from herself.

He rode hard. The moon came up and lit the mountain way. Time and again he thought he heard the Butte train snorting up the incline in the distance, but always the sound proved imaginary. And now he was nearing the railroad track, which ran, a narrow, edged ribbon, beneath him. He spurred his horse down the mountain way.

At last he dismounted and, turning the beast adrift to graze, waited beside the rails. Terrible thoughts assailed him as he waited there. What if, instead of killing Collins, he were to place one of the huge fallen firs across the rails, dislodging the engine from the metals as it came swinging round the curve? He could destroy Collins and a hundred others, sending them to their death among the bowders far below the grade, and escape unknown in the confusion.

Was Dorothy worth the sacrifice of his own life in retribution?

The temptation grew stronger, until the man shook with the agony that assailed him. At last he went toward the tallest of the firs, a giant tree as hard as ebony, which lay with its trunk projecting only a few inches from the rails. With the exercise of all his strength he could shift it a few inches down the incline. He knew that just where it lay the curve was the most dangerous. He stopped.

Then, in the distance, he heard the puffing of the engine as she forced her way up to the summit before descending on the grade that led to the siding. There was just time.

But the sight of the fiery eyes of the monster above him paralyzed his mind, and he could not turn his muscles to the accomplishment of the task. And now the engine was descending the grade, lumbering and screaming as she made her way toward the siding. Larry stood still. It was too late now. But it was not too late to carry out his original purpose.

Suddenly the moving mass seemed to stand still. She swerved, reared, and then, with a scream of escaping steam, the engine left the metals and toppled upon its side, followed by half the cars, yet clinging almost miraculously to the mountain side.

Flames burst out among the wreckage. The screams of the injured reached Larry's ears plainly. Entirely forgetful of his purpose, the man ran at full speed toward the scene of the accident. Men and women lay half buried beneath the wreckage. Larry ran along the side of the overturned cars, searching for Dorothy.

And he found her. She was uninjured, and, on her knees, she crouched beside a man with a ghastly wound across his breast. Larry knew Collins, though the face had been battered almost out of recognition. He must have been killed instantly.

He touched Dorothy upon the arm. "There is nothing to do," he said. "It is too late."

"Yes," she answered, rising to her feet in a mechanical manner and moving away. She seemed stunned by the catastrophe. She hardly realized where she was.

Larry devoted hour after hour to aiding the injured, until the hospital train that was rushed out from Butte came up. Then he found Dorothy again. She was standing near the body of her companion, looking uncertainly about her.

"What are you going to do?" asked Larry.

"I don't know," she answered calmly. She seemed to have lost all power of feeling. "Go on to California, I suppose. You see, I have my ticket."

"But what will you do there?"

"What does that matter to you? Anything?"

"Dorothy, you said you did not love that man," said Larry.

"Well," she returned.

"Dorothy, in the old days I used to love a little girl in Wales. She was highstrung and willful sometimes, but she was never bad. Nobody could have said that of her. And one day, after a quarrel—she didn't know I took it, but I took a vow. It was that I would always protect her, against herself even. And though that was long ago, and she is married now, do you suppose that makes any difference. Dorothy, I am never going back. I am going to California too. Is it to be together?"

And suddenly she was weeping upon his neck in an agony of shame.

Marriage Age for Women.

Training and efficiency, and not sex, should be the qualifications of those wishing to fill positions in life, says Dean Emilie W. McVea of Cincinnati university. She says that girls should marry at twenty-five, and the only objection to a college education is that it raises the marriage age to twenty-eight or thirty.

The Real Turk.

An insight into the character of the modern Turk is afforded by Harry Charles Lukach in his book, "The City of the Dancing Dervishes and Other Studies From the Near East." Speaking of the Turk as the author knows him, he says:

"For parental authority he entertains a deep regard. A grown up Turk who is lax enough to drink wine will usually hesitate to do so in the presence of his father. Similar diffidence is even shown sometimes with regard to the mother. Near relationship does not mean familiarity. Turks address their elder brothers by the titles of Yaman or Agha beyi, their sisters as Abla, seldom ever by name unless the difference in age is very slight. They obey seriously the injunctions of their mothers as to charity, and the solicitude of them does not permit them to suffer missionaries to starve. Furthermore, they do not blaspheme."

The Hollow in a Boiled Egg.

There is an air space in every egg, but we notice it particularly in a boiled one because the contents have been made solid by cooking and made the hollow space more apparent. This space is a provision of nature so that the chick which grows within the shell may have air to breathe from the time it comes to life until it becomes strong enough to break through the shell to the outside world.

To generate life in the egg it is necessary that it be subjected to a certain degree of heat for a period of twenty-one days. When this is not done the egg remains indefinitely in its raw state.

When it is boiled the pocket of air within the shell, which would have been used up by the chick if the egg had been set to hatch, begins to fight for its space and pushes the boiled contents of the egg back, leaving the hollow space.—Rocky Mountain News.

How Long Your Nails Grow.

The growth of an average finger nail is about one thirty-second of an inch a week, or nearly one and one-half inches in a year, so those aristocratic Chinese who proudly exhibit nails six to eight inches in length must have refrained from cutting them at least four to six years. Finger nails grow faster in the summer than in winter. The nail on the middle finger grows faster than any of the others, and that of the thumb is slowest in growth. The nails of the right hand grow faster than those of the left. A nail is supposed to reach its full growth in about four and a half months, and at this rate a man seventy years old would have renewed his nails 262 times. On each finger he would have grown nine feet of nail, or on all his fingers and thumbs no less than ninety feet of nail.—St. Louis Republic.

The First Tooth Festival.

Among the Syrians there is no such thing as giving a party in celebration of the first anniversary of the birth of a child. The celebration is held when the baby cuts its first tooth. On such an occasion friends of the parents are not invited to the house to eat cakes and listen to a phonograph, but whatever sweets may be prepared for the occasion are sent by the parents to the homes of the friends whom they wish to inform of the news. The friends later visit the parents and tender their congratulations. The dishes in which the samainieh is carried to neighbors and friends are not returned immediately. Sometimes it is a week or even two before they are back in their customary places in the family cupboard. When they are returned they are not empty.

He Got a Poor Drive.

Colonel Carter, says Collier's Weekly, had been playing golf for only three months. "Therefore when the secretary of the club saw the colonel playing his ball several feet in front of the tee disks during a tournament he thought the veteran soldier had forgotten the rule."

"Colonel! Colonel!" he exclaimed. "You must play from behind the tee disks!"

The colonel's face turned red, but he preserved his dignity.

"It's none of your business, sah," he answered as calmly as possible. "but this is my third stroke!"

Footie and Garrick.

Footie's favorite butt was Garrick, whose thrifty habits he was constantly turning into ridicule. One day while in his company Garrick after satirizing some individual wound up his attack by saying, "Well, perhaps before I condemn another I should pull the beam out of my own eye."

"And so you would," Footie replied. "if you could sell the timber!"

A Stone That Is Elastic.

There is a stone that is as flexible as rubber and that, when set up on edge in a thick plate, sways to and fro in the wind like a piece of leather. This stone is called Itakolumite, and the Scientific American says it is the mother rock of Brazilian diamonds.

A Mean Suggestion.

"I assure you, madam, my ancestors came over with the first settlers."

"Very likely. We had no immigration laws then."—Baltimore American.

Encouraged Him.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
